The fact is, the number of theives and gamblers is getting to be rather too large in town to comport with the safety of the community, and the only way to get rid of them is to set them to work and keep them at it until they are ready to take their departure, under a pledge of not returning. If all the dead beats about town were kept employed, they could break up rock enough in the course of the summer, to pave all our principal streets Now when it comes to the burglarizing of two houses in one night, we think it is time to hustle some of the chaps that do this business out of town.
